

TRIGGERING AN ELECTION

- Fixed election legislation requires an election every four years on the last Monday of October
- Elections may be held sooner if:
  - the government chooses to ask the Lieutenant Governor for an election; or
  - government loses a vote of confidence and the Lieutenant Governor is not convinced another party can form a stable government
- The date may also be changed to the first Monday of April if a federal election overlaps the provincial election